

Stink Tank

An organization ostensibly devoted to research and education that is financed by individuals and corporations committed to lowering taxes and reducing government services (except those they want) at all levels. These organizations manufacture research and manipulate data to fit their preconceived agenda of advocating what their funders want to hear and read.

Oklahoma endures the presence of two: The Oklahoma Council of Public Affairs and its echo tank The 1889 Institute.